Teaching infants, toddlers and preschoolers foreign languages will provide them with invaluable advantages, both now and for the future. By starting second-language education early, teachers can take advantage of the extensive brain development that occurs when students are in and around the preschool age. Second-language lessons are highly useful in promoting development and enhancing cognitive abilities. Studies have shown that young children who learn second languages often score higher on standardized tests, such as the SAT.

Additional benefits of teaching a foreign language at an early age are:

- When children learn multiple languages at a young age, they develop a life-long love of communicating with others.
- By incorporating foreign languages into your curriculum, children develop a greater appreciation for diversity.
- When young children learn about the structure of other languages, their ability in English is enhanced.
- Because the brain automatically compartmentalizes each language correctly, young children have the ability to learn many languages without getting them confused.
- When children learn a second language at an early age, they will achieve a more native grasp of both grammar and pronunciation in the second language.

With all of the benefits of teaching a foreign language, Little Learners Academy implements Spanish lessons into the daily curriculum. We want to ensure that our students have the opportunity to reach their full potential and become life long learners.
